Anna specialises in intellectual property law and life sciences. She has over ten years of professional experience, which includes advising leading global as well as emerging companies, both as an in-house counsel and within the frames of international law firms.

She has participated in numerous comprehensive cross border legal projects which required multidisciplinary approach to the commercial, regulatory and intellectual property matters specific for the FMCG industry (especially medicinal products, medical devices, food and borderline products), including new technologies, transfer, licensing and protection of IP rights, compliance & anti-bribery, as well as patent litigation.

Anna provides not only sector counsel but also strategic advice with respect to IP, regulatory, white collar crime issues, compliance, and other benchmark advice.

Speaker and trainer on multiple conferences, congresses and workshops. Former arbiter of Polmed's disciplinary court.
